

References

- Alvermann, D. E. (2002). Effective literacy instruction for adolescents. Journal of Literacy Research, 43, 189-208. www.nrconline.org
- International Reading Association. (2000). Teaching all children to read: The roles of the reading specialist. A Position Statement of the International Reading Association. Journal of Adolescent and Adult Literacy 44(1), 99-104
- International Reading Association. (2003). The role and qualifications of the reading coach in the United States: A position statement of the International Reading Association. www.reading.org/positions/reading_coach.html
- International Reading Association (2005). Standards for the middle and high school literacy coaches. Newark, DE: www.reading.org/downloads/resources/597coaching_standards.pdf
- Hall, B. (2003). Literacy coaches an evolving role. www.carnegie.org/reporter/09/literacy/index.html
- NASSP. (2006). Creating a culture of literacy: A guide for middle and high school principals. www.principals.org/s_nassp/sec.asp?TRACKID=&SID=1&CID=62&DID=62&RTID=0&CIDQS=&Taxonomy=False&specialSearch=False
- Neufeld, B. & Roper, D. (2003). Coaching: A strategy for developing instructional capacity. www.aspeninstitute.org/atf/cf/%7BDEB6F227-659B-4EC8-8F84-8DF23CA704F5%7D/ECSCOACHINGPAPERJULY03.PDF
- Quatroche, D. J., Bean, R. M., & Hamilton, R. L. (2001). The role of the reading specialist: A review of research. The Reading Teacher 55 (3), 282-294
- Sturtevant, E. G. (2003). The literacy coach: A key to improving teaching and learning in secondary schools. Washington, DC: Alliance for Excellent Education.
- Walpole, S., & McKenna, M. C. (2004). The literacy coach's handbook: A guide to research-based practice. New York: Guilford.